

Important note:

1. BEA Union Investment China High Yield Income Fund (the "Fund") seeks to achieve medium to long term capital growth and regular income by primarily (i.e. at least 70% of its net asset value) investing in high yield debt securities that are issued or guaranteed by entities which are incorporated in China or have significant operations in or assets in, or derive significant portion of revenue or profits from China.
2. The Fund may invest significantly in below investment grade or non-rated debt securities, including high yield bonds, which are generally subject to lower liquidity, higher volatility and greater risk of loss of principal and interest than higher rated securities.
3. The Fund invests in debts or fixed income securities are exposed to interest rates, credit/counterparty, downgrading, volatility and liquidity, valuation and sovereign debt and credit rating risks which may adversely affect the price of the debt securities.
4. The Fund's investments are concentrated in China. The value of the Fund may be more volatile than more diversified portfolio investments.
5. The manager may at its discretion make distributions from income and/or capital in respect of the distributing classes of the Fund. Distributions paid out of capital amount to a return or withdrawal of part of the unitholder's original investment or from any capital gains attributable to that original investment. Such distribution may result in an immediate reduction of the net asset value per unit.
6. In terms of currency hedged class units, adverse exchange rate fluctuations between the base currency of the Fund and the class currency of the currency hedged class units may result in a decrease in return and/or loss of capital for unitholders. Over-hedged or under-hedged positions may arise and there can be no assurance that the currency hedged class units will be hedged at all times or that the manager will be successful in employing the hedge.
7. RMB is currently not a freely convertible currency as it is subject to exchange controls and restrictions. Non-RMB based (e.g. Hong Kong) investors are exposed to foreign exchange risk and there is no guarantee that the value of RMB against the investors' base currencies (for example HKD) will not depreciate. Any depreciation of the RMB could adversely affect the value of investors' investments.
8. The Fund may acquire financial derivative instruments for hedging and investment purposes. Given the leverage effect embedded in financial derivative instruments, the Fund may be exposed to significant losses.
9. Investors should not make an investment decision based solely on this material.

Chinese High Yield Property Bonds Perform More Defensively

Highlights:

- 1. Chinese high yield property names perform more defensively
- 2. Chinese government's policy response is determined to control the pandemic
- 3. We look for solid names with low valuations and high liquidity

Fund Features

- The Fund targets to generate additional return through dynamic trading.
- Managed by seasoned investment professionals to ensure selection of China high yield bonds.

Market Review and Outlook
Interest Rate Market

- In March, the U.S. Treasury yields were dramatically lower due to pandemic fears, equity routs and oil shocks. The 10-year U.S. Treasury yield traded in a volatile range between 0.54% and 1.2% and closed at 0.67% at the end of the month.

Chinese High Yield Bonds

- The oil shocks and the pandemic has triggered global risk-off sentiment and a shortage of U.S. dollar. However, such impact was partially offset by the rate cut, quantitative easing and liquidity support by the U.S. Federal Reserve.
- In terms of sectors, Chinese financial and property names outperformed due to their shorter tenor and defensive nature. Chinese industrial names underperformed especially names in the oil service industry.
- The policy response by the Chinese government in controlling the pandemic was gradual but determined. There will be challenges in balancing the external demand shocks with fiscal stimulus and supporting the local small and medium enterprises.

Investment Strategy

- We remain cautious on global economic development amid coronavirus outbreak and OPEC disagreement. We will continue to look for solid names with exceptionally low valuations and high liquidity.
- The Fund has reduced the overall risk level and trimmed the weaker names. At the same time, the Fund has been invested in bonds with new issue premium in the primary market.
